

VETERAN FIREMEN DECIDE UPON YEAR'S SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

The Veteran Firemen's Association of Daly City met last Friday evening at their usual meeting place, a large number of the members being present in spite of the weather conditions. President Larry Shaw was in the chair and business of great importance was transacted.

The secretary of the board of directors, Comrade F. W. Schmidt, reported on the social activities which had been planned by the board for the year 1928. The program as outlined is as follows: There will be an outing and basket picnic for members and their families about the middle of the year, an old time dance later, and a family reunion at the Daly City Auditorium. Dates for these events will be selected later.

The annual turkey whist will be held on Friday evening, November 23. He also gave details concerning the annual banquet, which will be held on Saturday evening, February 11, at the Eagles Hall.

Arthur Bodien, president of the board reported the auditing of the books of Financial Secretary E. J. Ford and highly commended the Comrade on the thoroughness and efficiency of his work. He also requested the members to be strictly on time for the banquet, so all may be in the photograph which will be taken at the beginning of the dinner.

Comrade John Keeter was reported on the sick list, he having sustained an injury to his spine from a fall from the roof of his home. The following Comrades were notified to visit him at his home, 339 Willits street: Comrades E. J. Ford, A. Green, F. Hansen, A. Romer, George Augustien and A. Lang.

Four new members, E. Hanly of Company No. 2, P. Selmi and J. Ferro of Company No. 3, and Wm. Regan of Company No. 4 were initiated and signed the roll.

Several Comrades spoke on various subjects pertaining to the past, present and future of the association and its membership, after which refreshments were served.

COLLAPSES IN COURT FROM HEART ATTACK

It was with much sorrow that the many friends of Miss Gussie Wiley heard of her sudden death last Friday.

Miss Wiley was serving on a jury in San Francisco, and just as the verdict was given she collapsed and had to be rushed to the Emergency hospital, where she passed away from a heart attack shortly after arriving at the hospital.

She was the beloved sister of Mrs. L. Gurmendez, Mrs. M. Heister, Mrs. A. L. Hilton and Harry Wiley. She was a native of San Francisco.

The funeral was held on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the parlors of Morrison & Whalen at Baker and Hayes streets, where services were held. Interment was private.

Although Miss Wiley lived in San Francisco the past few years, she formerly resided in Daly City, on Crocker avenue, next door to her sister, Mrs. Hilton, where she leaves a host of friends to mourn her loss.

PLAN CELEBRATION OF ST. PATRICK'S DAY

The members of St. Maximus parish are going to celebrate St. Patrick's day this year with an entertainment and dance which will be held in the Daly City Auditorium, March 17, at 8 p. m. A troupe of entertainers will put on a show which will be an agreeable surprise to the people of Daly City. It will incorporate amongst its numbers many features portraying Irish life in song, dance and music. After the entertainment an orchestra will furnish modern music for the dance to follow. The program will appear in full in the next issue of this paper.

LYRIC TENOR SINGS AT THE M. E. CHURCH

Last Sunday evening a delightful musical program was held at the M. E. Church. Stanley V. Lewis, lyric tenor, of San Francisco, sang "Star of Night," by Franz Truber. Mr. Lewis has a very rich, clear tenor voice of pleasing quality and he sang with great feeling. He is very popular in musical circles in San Francisco, and the members of the M. E. church were exceedingly fortunate in securing his services for that evening. Mr. Lewis has been studying under Professor T. Eugene Goudey who accompanied him on the piano in a very artistic manner, and he predicts a great future for this young singer.

JOB'S DAUGHTERS, SCHOOL ORCHESTRA ENTERTAIN O. E. S.

Following the regular meeting of Crocker Chapter No. 382, Order of the Eastern Star, last Monday evening, an entertainment was provided for the members that will long be remembered.

The Job's Daughters Dramatic Club, under the direction of Mrs. A. Wankowski, presented a comedy and a pantomime which reflected great credit upon the youthful actors and their director.

Those who took part in the comedy, "Moving Day," were Marjory Martin, Peggy Burgh, Helen Lavelle, Elliott Graham and Albert Fink.

Those taking part in the pantomime "Bachelor's Reverie," were George Wilton, Marjory Martin, Helen Lavelle, Anna Johansen, Vivian Struven, Dorothy Boehmn and Lorraine Christensen.

The Jefferson Union high school orchestra, under the direction of Miss Potter, played three selections during the evening, each number being well received by the large crowd. The members of the orchestra are: Earl Friend, trumpet; Jack Sanderson, violin; Clark Williams, saxophone; Louis Anderson, drum; Josephine Jensen, piano; Albert Ennis, banjo.

At the conclusion of the program a banquet was enjoyed by one of the largest crowds to attend the meetings of the Chapter in some time.

LION CLUB MEMBERS TO ADVERTISE CITY

At the regular luncheon of the Daly City Lions last Monday noon, there was a discussion by the members as to the best way to advertise our fast growing community.

Claude Rich, president of the club, suggested that a slogan, such as the merchants in other communities use, be selected, and also suggested that a prize be offered for the best slogan.

Lion C. P. Gibbons, who is a charter member of the Mission Merchants' Association, spoke on the power of advertising and declared that Daly City, with its up-to-date stores and apartments and the many developments under way, should certainly encourage the merchants and also induce the people to shop and save at home.

Other members of the Lions Club heartily endorsed the idea, and an advertising committee was formed to interview the merchants and get their ideas on the best slogan, one that would be of benefit to them and the residents of the city.

An invitation was extended to non-members of the Lions Club who are in business in Daly City to join with the members of the Lions Club at their next Monday noon luncheon, at the Colonial Restaurant, and offer any suggestions they may have in regard to this matter.

ENDEAVORERS ARE AWARDED BANNER

The Endeavorers of Grace Presbyterian church did themselves proud in the Golden Gate convention of the city, winning one banner for registration, and came off tie among the three, thus winning the cup for four months of the coming year. The church has every reason to congratulate those who worked so hard to bring the Society into prominence among the workers of the county.

The Sunday morning service at the church was one of the most enthusiastic of many months, the attendance at Sunday school was excellent, and then the church was full for the preaching service at 11 o'clock.

The music committee again demonstrated that it was equal to the task, and furnished two splendid numbers with the orchestra, and an organ solo as offertory by Miss Mildred Roof was most appropriate for the occasion. The climax in the musical numbers was given by Miss Mae Swan in a vocal solo which was very touching and brought many words of commendation, and we hope she may sing for us again very soon. She was accompanied at the piano by Miss Mildred Swan.

The committee for next Sabbath evening is Mrs. Tom Swan and Mrs. George Riddell, and we are confident they will not disappoint us.

The Christian Endeavor Society, led by Miss Mildred Swan, will have charge of the evening services for next Sabbath evening, and a good time is promised in music and helpfulness. Come out, stand by our young people in the Endeavor work, and then we are very sure they will stand by the church.

Everybody on the job and a job for everyone will make the work of the Kingdom of Christ grow and prosper. CHAS. H. GATCHELL, Minister.

SHOP AND SAVE IN DALY CITY

The residents of our fast growing municipality are getting so used to rapid development along Mission street that they are apt to take our many new stores and business buildings as a matter of course. But it is time for us to realize that these progressive business people who are spending thousands and thousands of dollars giving to Daly City residents the highest form of new, up-to-date stores, offices and apartments have made it no longer necessary to spend car fare in order to fill one's needs.

Where in San Francisco can you find a more splendid type of 100 per cent sanitary market that that which has just been opened by Mr. Milo? There is everything needed by the householder, and you just couldn't buy finer foodstuffs, no matter how much you wanted to spend.

With the contract let for the construction of the new theatre, at Flournoy and Mission streets, with the renovating of The Relish Bakery, the Masonic Hall building, the Hontales candy store at Hillcrest and Mission, the opening of a fine new drug store, a new restaurant, Madam Lombard's success in her new store, the new apartments being erected on Hillcrest Drive by Charles Gibbons, and the fine new apartments and office of the Community Realty Company, erected by Mrs. Anna Poket, the reconstruction of the Brick Bakery for the Geneva Baking Company, and the many hundreds of new homes in the district, Daly City can well be proud of the year's achievement.

But just being proud of it isn't enough. We have, in order that these splendid enterprises may be a lasting success, to get behind them and give them our MORAL AND FINANCIAL SUPPORT. Actions speak louder than words, and what we want now is ACTION. Now is the time for all good boosters of Daly City to form a Business Men's Booster Association, and vote unanimously to do all their buying and boosting in our district, so that the present activity may be only the forerunner of a center which will have within itself all that may be needed in any line whatever by all and sundry.

The Lions Club, a live organization with civic improvements as its objective, needs the support of every business man in the community, both morally and in the matter of turning out in goodly numbers to their social activities. It is by such successes that these clubs are enabled to do constructive work in the community.

Let's all get in and boost from today on.

FIRE COMMISSIONERS IN MONTHLY SESSION

Last Monday evening the Fire Commissioners held their regular monthly meeting. The old board was called to order at 8 o'clock, and after transacting all unfinished business the board was discharged, after which the new board of commissioners, who are to hold office the ensuing year, took their respective offices. The commissioners elected are: Company No. 1, G. Schanck; Company No. 2, A. Twisten; Company No. 3, P. Selmi; Company No. 4, G. R. Augustien, chairman; Company No. 5, C. Brady.

The following officers were appointed by the board: J. J. Kennedy, chief; F. Hansen, assistant chief; A. Rickman, fire marshal; A. Lang, clerk of the board.

Following the commissioners' meeting the firemen of the five volunteer fire companies of Daly City held their joint monthly meeting, which was called to order by the chairman.

On recommendation of the chief, the commissioners bought a safety appliance for handling high tension wires.

The proposition of better fire apparatus for Daly City was discussed at length, with Lieutenant Cuneo, of Company No. 4, Marshal Sevello, of Company No. 5, and Fireman Shoup, of Company No. 2, debating the question.

A committee was appointed to take up the matter of fire insurance rates with the Board of Fire Underwriters. The committee consists of Commissioners Twisten, Selmi and Schanck, Chief J. J. Kennedy, Mayor H. H. Smith, Firemen Vireno, Schmidt and Spreckmeyer.

THEATRE PARTY FOR GRADUATING CLASS

The Parent-Teachers' Association of the Woodrow Wilson-Vista Grande schools tendered their graduating class a theatre party at the Orpheum on Friday evening of last week. They were chaperoned by Mrs. F. Rickman and daughter Frances, Mrs. E. E. Foss, Mrs. C. Sherwood and Mrs. Loomis.

A delightful evening was spent by the following children: Iris Guthrie, Irene Malakowski, Muriel Sherwood, Juanita Puccini, Mary Phelan, Edith Lewis, Hannah Kluger, Gladys Goldberg, Lavita Hicks, Gwendolyn McLaughlin, Roland Martin, Walter Davis, Richard Pescaro, Kenneth Smith, Albert Boynton, Alfred Hoar, Robert Malaspina, Frank Bosky, Fred Kufeldt, Julius Kufeldt, James McIsaac, Mendel Herscowitz.

MANY ATTEND THE FORMAL OPENING OF THE MILO MARKET

The new Milo Market, recently completed by A. Milo, was formally opened last Friday evening, the opening of this splendid addition to the business section of Daly City being attended by a vast throng of residents of this section.

The new market was a veritable bower of beauty, there being floral pieces in profusion, while a splendid orchestra was industriously employed during the evening.

It was an auspicious opening and the generally expressed opinion of the many visitors on the opening night was that this market will compare favorably with any in San Francisco or on the peninsula. This new place of business will undoubtedly prove profitable to all interested, and is a step forward in the improvement and upbuilding of Daly City.

This splendid new building is now occupied by the following: A. Milo, meat department; Sordelli & Raffo, groceries and fruit; A. and V. Aiello, fish and poultry; L. Cramer, delicatessen; Marcela & Marshall, luncheonette department; R. Mervik, bakery; Al Wisser, hardware; Dr. F. P. Callsen, dentist; Dr. R. W. Casey, Chiropractor; and Mrs. A. Milo, Daly City Beauty Shoppe.

LARGE GATHERING AT CHRISTENING SERVICE

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Loomis, of 82 Peoria street, entertained a large gathering of friends at their home last Saturday evening in honor of the christening of their two youngest children, and also the christening of the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Green.

The children, who were christened by Father Lynch of St. Maximus church, were Virginia Rose Loomis, whose godparents are Mrs. Rose Shrine and Mr. Ruben Lopez; William B. Loomis, Jr., whose godparents are Mrs. H. Lohneis and Mr. Thomas Lohneis; Helen Jean Green, whose godparents are Miss Josephine McMahon and Mr. Eddie Galli.

The evening was spent in dancing to a jazz orchestra and at midnight a buffet supper was served, after which dancing was continued until the early hours of the morning.

The guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. L. Green, Mr. and Mrs. H. Shrine, Mr. and Mrs. T. Lohneis and son George, Mr. and Mrs. H. Lohneis, Mr. and Mrs. L. Lohneis, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. LOCAL MARINE WILL SEE SERVICE IN CHINA

Looking forward to service in China with the Third Brigade of Marines now on duty there, Anthony C. Arcuri, of Daly City, recently left San Diego with a detachment of replacement troops bound for service abroad. His name appears on a list of Marines who left for China on the U. S. S. Henderson.

Several U. S. Marines have been sent to China since early last year, when detachments of the sea soldiers were landed at Shanghai to protect American lives and property. It is not known just where the local Marine will be located, as a number of Marines are now on duty at Tientsin and Peking, as well as at Shanghai.

Arcuri lived with his father, Pietro Arcuri 852 Hanover street, Daly City, before he joined the Marine Corps at San Francisco last September. In recent weeks he has been stationed at San Diego.

DEATH OF RALPH HAMMER

It was with deep sorrow that the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Hammer learned of the death of their son Ralph on Tuesday evening at their home, 67 Willits street. Ralph was born in Daly City and attended the schools here from the first grade and was a student of Jefferson Union high school until his last serious illness. Besides his parents he leaves three sisters, Clara H., Evelyn L., and Dorothy F., and a brother, Daniel Hammer, to mourn his loss. The funeral services were held on Thursday from the mortuary chapel of W. C. Lasswell & Co., 6154 Mission street. Cremation was at Cypress Lawn Memorial Park.

SUPERVISORS PLAN ARTERIAL STOP SIGNS FOR COUNTY ROADS

Placing of arterial stops at all dangerous crossings on county roads was authorized in a resolution passed last Monday by the San Mateo county board of supervisors. A survey of the roads was made by Captain James Logan of the state traffic squad and the signs will be placed under his supervision by the California Automobile Association.

John McGrath of San Mateo urged the supervisors to endorse a movement started by Congressman Welch for a survey of San Francisco bay from Hunter's point to Revenwood point for bulk and pier heads. Congressman Welch is asking the war department engineers to make a survey and estimate the cost of the work.

Supervisors appropriated $50 to be expended in making accessible a huge redwood tree in back of Redwood City near the Skyline boulevard. The Bear Gulch Water company, which owns the property, will expend a like amount. Supervisor Thomas Hickey recommended that the tree be called the "John MacBain tree," in memory of the late chairman of the board of supervisors.

Resignation of Miss Bertha E. Budworth as head nurse of the Community hospital was accepted. Miss Budworth gave no reason for quitting her post.

A sum of $445.40 was turned over to the supervisors by collectors who have been seeking to collect $9,000 in back bills at the Community hospital. It was planned to drop further collections on the recommendation of the grand jury.

Reports of all county officers for the month of January were received. Attention of the supervisors was directed toward the annual supervisors' convention. It will be held in San Francisco March 6, 7 and 8 and in Los Angeles on March 9.

STATE PROBE OF TOLL BRIDGES IS ORDERED

An exhaustive investigation of toll bridges connecting with California state highways, has been ordered by Bert B. Meek, state director of public works, in compliance with an act of the 1927 legislature.

The state division of highways, which will conduct the survey for Meek, will make the investigation to acquaint the 1929 legislature with all phases of the toll bridge problem including traffic count, costs of operation, revenues, etc.

Meek, who recently declared against all toll roads and toll bridges at a meeting of the governor's council, said that the act provides for recommendations with reference to the state's taking over all privately owned toll bridges, with a plan for financing their purchase.

Appointment of Charles E. Andrews, bridge engineer of the State Highway Commission, to be in charge of the structural part of the probe, was also announced by Meek. A similar investigation was conducted by Andrews in the state of Washington in 1926-27.

HIGH SCHOOLS TEND TOWARD SCHOLARSHIP

The tendency of the stronger preparatory schools of the state to require for recommendation to the University more substantial preparation in essential academic branches, as well as better grades, seems to be growing and becoming more general, says Professor Clarence Paschall, Examiner of Schools, in his annual report to President W. W. Campbell. As this development grows out of practical experience, he says, and as the changes it has brought about have justified themselves in their results, there is good reason to hope that the movement will continue.

Four hundred and twenty-seven schools applied for accreditation last year and 412 were accredited. Of the number applying, 389 were visited. Of the 412 accredited, 219 were in Division A, 183 public schools and 36 private schools, and 193 were in Division B, 140 public schools and 53 private schools. Seven schools were reduced from A to B, and five were advanced from B to A. Two schools were dropped from the list. Notices were sent to 141 public schools and three private schools in which unsatisfactory conditions prevailed, and warnings, where these conditions were of long standing, were sent to 11 public and three private schools.

"On the whole the scholarship records made by the recommended graduates of a school at the University are consistent with conditions within the school as we know them from the reports of our visitors," reports Professor Paschall. "In principalship, teaching staff or policy with reference to recommendation, violent fluctuations in the scholarship rating are unlikely. The stronger schools which maintain good standards are successful year after year, while the weaker ones continue to send students into the University to do mediocre work or to fail. The marked improvement in rating of some of the larger schools has been due chiefly to the adoption of better subject requirements for recommendation, to better standards of grading and to sectioning classes on the basis of ability."

"The Fair Co-ed," in which Marion Davies has the leading role, will be at the State Theatre for two days, next Monday and Tuesday, February 13 and 14. Lovers of school sports will get quite a kick out of this picture.

Another paradox is that the more shiftless a man is the oftener the landlords make him shift.

A new machine will pluck a fowl in 45 seconds. But some birds get skinned in less time than that.

WANT $2,500,000 FOR COMMUNITY CHEST

Six thousand unpaid volunteer workers, men and women of San Francisco, will make the community wide solicitation of funds for the Community Chest, February 27 to March 9. In addition to subscribing to the fund themselves these good citizens are giving of their personal time to call on others to lend their assistance to the great humanitarian movement to raise $2,500,000 with which to finance the welfare and relief agencies financed by the Chest during the coming year.

Unless the full amount is raised helpless little children and homeless old folks must suffer from lack of attention; character-building institutions and recreational institutions for boys and girls will be retarded in their activities and in the long run the citizenship as a whole will suffer the consequences. Such a condition, sad to relate, existed in San Francisco last year. It is hoped enough money will be subscribed this year to take care of every worthy case.

COMPLETES FORTY YEARS OF SERVICE

J. W. Gilkyson, coast division commercial manager for The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company, has just completed his fortieth year in its service, marked by the presentation of a six starred, gold service emblem, which distinguishes him as one of the pioneers in telephone circles of the Pacific Coast. Gilkyson has been associated with many of the foremost developments of telephony in California, Oregon, Washington and Idaho, since he began his chosen career, in 1887, in San Francisco.

Notable among Gilkyson's achievements was his handling of the change from magneto to express type centruth and justice. But if such competitions are held, the best essays should be awarded the prizes, regardless of other considerations.

AL JOLSON AT THE EMBASSY

The Embassy Theatre yesterday presented for the first time in San Francisco, Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer." The picture is the first feature film to be scored completely on the Vitaphone. During the course of the story one sees and hears Al Jolson sing six numbers and more in his own inimitable manner; sees and hears him talk to his mother in the story; sees and hears him joke in his best individual manner. The film is based on the play of the same name by Samuel Raphaelson, which ran for over a year in New York. "The Jazz Singer" has been booked for a limited engagement at the Embassy, which will be its only San Francisco showing on the Vitaphone.

When opera singers throw things around it is attributed to the Artistic Temperament. We may be thankful that bricklayers seldom get that way.

In addition to the special feature, Adolph Menjou in "The Gentleman of Paris," the State Theatre will present special stage attractions on Friday, February 17.

It appears that some women get married only as a preliminary to acquiring the fascination which is supposed to attach to a "dashing young widow."

While casting about for an antidote for crime, it might be well to consider the possibilities of hemp.

If we had the keys to some cities we know we should lose no time in getting out.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

California peace officers during 1927 called upon Governor Young to extradite 185 fugitives from other states, the Governor announced last week. At the same time the chief executive was asked to order 207 fugitives returned to other states, but of these requests only 173 were granted. Los Angeles with eighty extradition requests and San Francisco with twenty-four lead all the counties of the state in seeking fugitives in other districts.

Based on the returns from the three-cent gasoline tax the last quarter of 1927, the State Board of Equalization estimates that California's road income from this source for 1928 will amount to $32,000,000, of which approximately $10,600,000 will go for new construction on state highways and $21,400,000 will be used for maintenance and repairs of existing state and county roads. A statement to this effect was issued by the board at Sacramento last week.

California's consolation prize for mineral production in 1926 has been awarded to Sutter county. First prize goes to Los Angeles because of its many flowing oil wells which helped build up a total mineral production figure of $194,358,926. The State's total was $450,330,856. Alpine and Kings counties kept company pretty much with Sutter in the smallness of mineral production totals, for, while Sutter's was $450 and Kings $720.

The division of motor vehicles a few days ago estimated that approximately 135,000 persons were fined, jailed or otherwise punished in California during 1927, for violations of the motor vehicle act. Actual abstracts of violations forwarded to the division by the various courts of the state, in compliance with the law, number 85,145. Division officials estimated there were at least 50,000 more violations of which the state has no record, due to the failure of judges to report.

A survey of the operations of the State Veterans' Welfare Board to determine whether real estate men have been discriminated against in the purchase of homes and farms for California former service men, is being made by a committee of the Sacramento Real Estate Board. It became known last week. F. E. Michel, president of the Sacramento board, announced that a special committee is now studying the workings of the State agency and is expected to present a report in the near future. And this news was met by a statement from George M. Stout, secretary of the Veterans' Welfare Board, to the effect that the State is buying homes to aid the former service men of California and not the real estate men.

California county probation officers have been requested to co-operate with Mrs. Anna L. Saylor, state director of social welfare, in an attempt to standardize probation work. Recently Mrs. Saylor held a conference at Sacramento with leading probation officers of the North, and a similar meeting with officers of southern counties soon will be held in Los Angeles. Mrs. Saylor declared that the probation officers generally favor a standardized system for all the counties and are anxious to assist in the formation of a program that would work to the benefit of the officers.

State Forester M. B. Pratt a few days ago announced that 25,000 2-year-old seedlings of assorted species have been given to the state board of forestry by the Eddy Tree Breeding Station of Placerville for experimental purposes. All but 9,800 of the seedlings are to be assigned to interested individuals in various localities of the state to determine the proclivities of the trees in various climates. The remainder will be placed in the state nursery at Davis. Most of the trees consist of western yellow pine, Rocky Mountain yellow pine, Douglas fir and redwood. But there also are some un-pine, eastern white pine and Japanese larch.

Stockton's $6,000,000 deeper-water project, the construction stage of which will begin this year, will provide California with the finest and safest inland waterway for ocean-going ships in the United States, and be of great aid to inland development, according to information given Stockton Chamber of Commerce committees and civic bodies by City Manager Charles E. Ashburner. During the first year's work on the project, a total of $1,239,000 will be expended jointly by the Federal government, the State of California and the city of Stockton. The government appropriation calls for $420,000, while the city will spend $400,000. The remainder will be supplied from the $19,000 rights-of-way appropriation of the State of California.

California has risen from thirty-second to twenty-first place in voting percentage of its registration since 1924, the California Development Association reported at a meeting of regional vice-presidents at San Francisco. The report was submitted with a resolution to continue the plan inaugurated in that year of rewarding the community showing the greatest strength at the polls each year in proportion to its registration. The work is carried on through the better citizenship committee which, this year, will have Attorney Albert A. Rosen-shine of San Francisco at its head.

A. P. Giannini was warmly commended at the Governor's cabinet meeting last week, held in Sacramento, for his gift to the University of California for establishment of an agricultural economics foundation. Coming from one of the country's leading financiers," declared State Agricultural Director George H. Hecke, "no better illustration is needed to indicate that finance in general, and Mr. Giannini in particular, are sympathetically desirous of helping agriculture."

Creation of a State mineral advisory board, modeled somewhat after the fashion of the highway commission, to represent the mining industry in State affairs and assist generally in stimulation of the industry, is advocated by Fred G. Stevenot, State director of natural resources. The proposal has been presented to Governor C. C. Young by Stevenot, whose department includes the State Division of Mines and Mining.

Further re-organization of the State Department of Education, establishing a director of education with authority to deputize a qualified educator for administration of the State Teachers' Colleges and special schools, was advocated last week by William John Cooper, State Superintendent of Public Instructions. In the dual capacity of State superintendent and educational director, Cooper has been obliged to handle all educational affairs.

Announcement that a comprehensive state engineering survey is being made of all contemplated grade preparations and highway bridges, with a view to construction operations, was made last week by Bert B. Meek, State Director of Public Works. Consultations are planned with the officials of interested railroad companies, Meek said, in an effort to determine policies affecting participation in grade separation costs.

The State forest tree plantations, organized in connection with the program for the reforestation of cut over timber lands in California, now amount to 53,377 acres, according to a report filed recently with Fred G. Stevenot, director of the State department of natural resources, by State Forester M. B. Pratt. This is but the nucleus of a great system of such plantations, the report declared.

Stockton was the unanimous choice last week of the committee as the 1928 convention city of the United Portuguese Lodge of Oakland, supreme president of the order, said that plans were being made to entertain 4,000 delegates during the convention, October 7 to 13, inclusive. The order has 50,000 members in the state.

A building report for 1927, issued by S. W. Straus & Company, shows that California is still firmly anchored in third position among her sister states for the volume of new construction undertaken during the year. The golden state, with a total valuation of $327,207,643 for 1927, was surpassed only by New York and Illinois and held a substantial majority over her nearest rival, which was Michigan. Los Angeles was the fourth heaviest building city in the nation and San Francisco ranked ninth.

A $4,000,000 steam generating plant of 53,000 kilowatt capacity will be built on a forty-acre site in India Basin by the Great Western Power Company, it was announced last week by A. Emory Wishon, general manager. The new plant will be the first unit of a development to provide hundreds of thousands of horse power to the bay district and the twenty-six Central California counties reached by the interconnected systems of the Great Western Power Company, the San Joaquin Light and Power Company and the Midland Counties.

C. H. Purchell, district engineer of the United States Bureau of Public Roads, with headquarters in Portland, last week was appointed State highway engineer, the most important State position remaining in the gift of Governor C. C. Young. This announcement by Bert B. Meek, director of the State Department of Public Works, means that ousting of Robert M. Morton, State highway engineer of the Richardson administration. As highway engineer, Purchell will have direct charge of the task of mapping $47,000,000 worth of State highway new construction and maintenance work to be carried on in California during the present biennium.

Rich ore has been found in the Tuolumne mine near Soulsbyville, a mine which has been idle for sixty years, according to word reaching mining men at Stockton. Ore assaying from $30 to $70 a ton has been discovered. The mine is to be developed through a new shaft to be sunk 200 feet north of the old and original workings by Morgan Bergreen of Los Angeles and John B. Sivioli of Cherokee, who have leased the property from Benjamin Soulsby of Soulsbyville. In the late fifties the vein was worked to a depth of forty feet, but was abandoned due to hardness of rock and the urge of a gold discovery elsewhere.

Found in a mine shaft 125 feet underground, a fossilized bone, discovered recently by R. E. Blum of Pentz, Butte county, is the shoulder blade of an extinct camel, probably of the Miocene or Pliocene ages. This is the declaration of W. D. Mathews of the department of paleontology of the University of California to whom the bone was sent. Blum was at work mining in the tunnel when he made the discovery. Since then he has found what he believes to be other bones of the animal. The bones were found near an old creek bed at the end of an 800-foot tunnel.

GOOD THINGS TO EAT

The following is a delicious soup to serve on special occasions:

Sweetbread Cream Soup.—Parboil one pair of sweetbreads, remove the skin after parboiling slightly, cut into cubes and fry in a few tablespoonfuls of butter; sprinkle with flour, stir and cook for a few minutes, then add two quarts of veal broth. Let simmer for thirty minutes, skimming from time to time. Season with salt and grated nutmeg; before serving add one-half pint of cream beaten with four egg yolks.

Cornish Pasty.—This is a full meal and when made in cold weather can be reheated or eaten cold. The Cornish miners carry these pies for their dinners, making a good meal with a cup of hot coffee.

Line a deep pie plate with a rich biscuit dough and fill with the following: A layer of half-inch cubes of beefsteak with plenty of suet to add fat; season well, add a layer of parboiled rutabagas sliced, a layer of thinly sliced onion, and a layer of thinly sliced potatoes, all uncooked as well as beef. Use plenty of seasoning and if the meat lacks fat add butter. Cover with the biscuit dough, leaving a vent. Bake at least two hours in a moderate oven. Take from the oven, wrap in a cloth and set in a cool place for ten minutes. This steams the crust and seasons it.

Veal Birds.—Take one thin slice of veal, pound it to one-eighth of an inch in thickness, cut into pieces three by five inches. Scrape all the meat from the trimmings of a half-pound cheaper cut of veal. Add one slice of chopped salt pork, one-half cupful of bread crumbs softened in milk, salt, pepper, chopped mushrooms, and mix all together. Spread over the pieces of veal; tie up when rolled tightly. Fasten with a toothpick if preferred and fry in pork fat until nicely browned. Place in a baking dish and cover with thin cream, with a bit of flour mixed with a little cream to thicken the gravy. Bake for an hour.

Seasonable Dishes.

Here is a dainty cake to serve with a cup of tea or cocoa when friends drop in.

Date Bars.—Cream one cupful of granulated sugar with three beaten eggs and six tablespoonfuls of cold water. Break one-half cupful of nuts into small pieces and mix with ten ounces of dates which have been chopped. Add one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt and one teaspoonful of baking powder. Mix all together with one cupful of flour. Spread in a layer one-half inch thick on a baking sheet and bake in a moderate oven twenty minutes. When cool remove the side crusts cut into bars one inch wide and four inches long. Roll in powdered sugar just before serving.

Plum Pudding.—Mix and sift three cupfuls of flour with one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt, one teaspoonful of soda and cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful each of cloves, allspice and nutmeg. Add one cupful of chopped figs, one-half cupful of chopped citron, the same of almonds and currants, one cupful raisins, one cupful each of milk and molasses. Mix the liquids, add the fruit with one cupful of chopped suet; pour into well-buttered molds and steam four hours. Serve with:

Apricot Sauce.—Take three-fourths of a cupful of apricot pulp, three-fourths of a cupful of powdered sugar, mix well and fold in one cupful of heavy cream beaten stiff. Flavor with a few drops of almond.

Creole Panned Rabbits.—Cut rabbits into pieces, season with salt and pepper and roll in flour. Cook six tablespoonfuls of pork drippings, drain the fat, pour on a cupful of any canned fruit juice and simmer eight minutes. Make a sauce from the fat in the pan, using strained tomato, some of the stock, flour and seasonings. Cook until thick. Put the rabbits into a baking pan, pour over the stock and bake one hour.

Apple Dumplings.—Core and pare the required number of apples. Melt one cupful of sugar in one cupful of boiling water for six to eight apples and boil five minutes, then drop in the apples, turning often to keep the apples whole. Remove the apples when tender throughout and let them cool. Make a plain pastry, roll very thin and cut into squares the size to cover the apples. Set an apple on a square, fill the center with butter, sugar, cinnamon which have been well creamed together, or use raisins and nuts with fruit jelly. Pinch up the corners of the pastry, brush with cold water and dredge with granulated sugar. Bake about twenty minutes. Serve with the sirup in which the apples were cooked.

GLIB TONGUE IS NEWEST WEAPON

Some Men Consider Verbal Strategy Legitimate Golf.

Modern psychology has invaded golf. And with it rises a new menace to the susceptible amateur—the hazard of the glib tongue.

Regardless of respective abilities the exponent of this Twentieth century mesmerism is likely to triumph over an unguarded opponent, says Harold H. Hilton, former British open and amateur champion, writing in January American Golfer.

Mr. Hilton is a veteran of many golf campaigns. In his long career he has engaged adversaries of every kidney, and that includes some of the smoothest links-talkers that have ever tortured nervous men.

The practice of conversational golf is not new, as anyone who has followed the game ruefully knows, but applied psychology has given to it a subtle and perilous reinforcement.

"One of my earliest experiences in championship golf," Mr. Hilton said, "was when I had to meet a very experienced, middle-aged player. On form I should have defeated him and I really did think I would. He beat me—or perhaps it would be better to say I beat myself."

"When I came in, a very sick and sorry golfer, an old-time player remarked, 'Well, I am surprised that he beat you, Harold. Did he talk you out of it?' Then it suddenly dawned on me that he had. That was my first lesson in the art of propaganda, but I have had many lessons since."

Now Mr. Hilton's motto is "forewarned forearmed," and he simply doesn't listen to anything that is said to him. The former champion tells of a peculiarly sinister golf psychologist who wins his matches from able men by discussion of their grips on the club.

This Machiavelli, when the match is nearing home, suddenly asks his adversary if he hasn't changed his grip.

"No, I don't think I have," is the dubious reply.

"But surely you used to hold the club this way—" He demonstrates, and for a minute or two the victim shifts his fingers into various experimental positions. His next tee shot is topped. So is the next. And the third shot almost inevitably will be sliced.

Many men, says the American Golfer article, consider verbal strategy a legitimate part of their game. Forty and fifty years ago, he admits, a certain degree of license was more or less recognized. While there is at present no rule forbidding this practice the Britisher sets his mind firmly against it.

Long-Distance Drive Is Error of Many Golfers

The worst peril to the average golfer is the temptation of distance. He feels that he must hit the ball hard to make it travel—and the result is often that he loses the rhythm of his stroke.

Co-ordinating power with the rhythm, says the American Golfer, is the trick that one must learn to achieve maximum driving. Correct form is essential. But the emphasis on distance, even so, is often overstressed.

The outstanding difference between the good amateur and the professional, says Vivian Doran, author of the article, is that the professional's consistency from the tee offsets the amateur's frequent superiority on the green. The reason for this is simply that the money player doesn't take his tee shot too seriously. He knows the distance he can make, and what little advantage his opponent may have in that department he will attempt to offset by more careful approach shots.

New World's Record

Martha Norellus of the Women's Swimming association established a new world's record for the 600 yards free-style swim by making the distance in 8:17 2-5. The previous record, also held by her, was 8:25 2-5, made in Buffalo in December, 1926. The photograph shows Miss Norellus in a graceful pose.

HOLDING ANTS

"For the present I have nothing to eat," said the Pygmy Ant-eater, "so I will tell my story."

"I hold my paws before me when I am not eating and I think of the ants I am going to eat and of the ants I have eaten."

"I am gray and brown and I work only at night."

"I have four feet, one nose, one tail, two eyes, one mouth and a very happy stomach when filled, and a very unhappy one when empty."

"But the interesting part of my story is this:

"I have enemies. I have always had

"My Enemies Are the Ants."

them, and I suppose I always will have them.

"My enemies are the ants."

"They don't consider my love for them a compliment."

"And they are my enemies."

"They hate me! Oh, how they hate me! They think I am a terrible creature, an ogre, or something awful."

"I don't know what an ogre is, and I don't believe anyone else does, for I've heard there were no such things; but, anyway, the ants think I am quite the most dreadful of creatures."

"It is glorious to have enemies, but still more glorious to be able to eat your enemies."

"Ah, I'm the pygmy ant-eater, my first name meaning that I am small, but I can hold many ants, I can, and it gives me joy, great joy, to do so."

South Sea Island Costume

Every boy likes to dress up like a pirate or a South sea islander, according to A. Neely Hall writing in Child Life Magazine.

"It suggests at once," he says, "a vaudeville and circus sideshow, which are packs of fun to get up. Making costumes and accessories for home or school shows gives one something to do in the workshop, too."

"A South sea islander costume is easy to make, because there is little to it," continues the author of "The Boy Craftsman." "You need a pair of bathing trunks, and a belt to which you have attached raffia, raveled hemp rope, or straw, to form a grass skirt. And you need brown grease paint, and some ornaments. Make earrings of curtain rings with loops of thread tied to them. Make a nose ring of a bicycle trousers guard and an anklet of a large rubber band with feathers glued to it. For the spear, you need a curtain pole or rake handle. Cut it off to a length equal to your height. The spear head may be cut out of wallboard or plywood. Saw a slot in the end of the staff large enough to set the shank of the spear head in, slip the shank into the slot, and secure with a binding of twine. If the spear breaks off, you can quickly prepare a new one."

"The shield is made of the top of a bushel basket. Bolt two pieces of a leather strap to the basket top for arm and hand straps. Then cover the face of the shield with a piece of leather, or imitation leather, taken from a worn-out chair, cushion or automobile cushion."

The Naughty Mouse

Oh, I'll tell you a story that nobody knows. Of ten little fingers and ten little toes, Of two pretty eyes and one little nose, And where they all went one day.

Oh, the little red nose smelled something sweet. So sweet it must surely be nice to eat; And patter away went two little feet Out of the room one day.

Ten little toes climbed up on a chair, Two eyes peeped along the big shelf, Lay a lovely cake all frosted and fair, Made by mamma that day.

The mouth grew round and the eyes grew big At taste of sugar, the spice, the fig. And two little fingers went dig, dig, dig.

Into the cake that day. And when mamma kissed the curly head, Cuddling it closely up in bed, "I wonder was there a mouse," she said.

"Out on the shelf today?"

"Oh, mamma, yes," and a laugh of glee, Like fairy bells rang merrily, "But the little bit of a mouse was me— Out on the shelf today."

CANAL BUILDER DEAD

The great canal builder is dead. Major-General George Washington Goethals, who carried the stupendous Panama Canal project to successful completion, passed away a short time ago in his seventieth year.

General Goethals was a native of Brooklyn, where he was born June 29, 1858. He was graduated from West Point and passed through all the army grades, reaching that of Major-General in 1915.

It was during his service as a Colonel of Engineers, between 1907 and 1914, that he performed the greatest feat of his long and creditable career, which resulted in the opening of the Panama Canal, connecting the Atlantic and the Pacific, thus realizing the dream of centuries.

In the prosecution of this great work, Colonel Goethals was aided most ably by General William G. Gorgas of the Army Medical Corps, and their two names are inseparably linked with the history of the canal.

In addition to his outstanding fame as the canal builder, General Goethals was accorded high credit elsewhere for his superior organizing and administrative ability. Early in his army career he attracted attention by his skill in building the canal around the now famous Muscle Shoals. Although he was retired from the army in 1916, he returned to active duty and served with distinction during the World war, filling many important posts.

For his work in the construction of the Panama Canal and his long and useful service in other fields, America will hold General Goethals in grateful remembrance.

WAR COSTS LESS THAN FIRE

The tragedy of fire is not that each year the loss totals over $500,000,000 but that, according to the National Board of Fire Underwriters, 86 per cent of the fires are preventable. In other words, at least $430,000,000 annually is destroyed because of carelessness, ignorance or incompetence. It is far more of a menace than war, which seems an expensive pastime in comparison.

Reports have it that the recent intensive fire-prevention movements have borne fruit, and that 1928 will show less than preceding years. It is high time the public took advantage of the teachings of experts, and the terrible examples that every day affords. Our people cannot have an unblemished reputation for wisdom and intelligence as long as this "Fifth Horseman," fire, still rides rough-shod among us.

Anyway, Congress should at least provide the Mississippi valley with a good, roomy ark.

WILL COMPLETE HIGHWAY

Nevada has taken official action assuring early completion of the last remaining gap in a second great transcontinental motor touring artery to Northern and Central California—the Lincoln highway.

Governor Fred Balzar has approved the bill passed by the current session of the Nevada legislature placing in the Nevada state highway system the route between Ely, Nevada, and Wendover, just across the Utah line.

This connection, closing the uncompleted portion of the Lincoln highway between the two states, was recommended by conferences of highway leaders and officials of California, Nevada and Utah, arranged last spring, to end a deadlock over the various proposed routes which has existed for ten years.

S. C. Durkee, Nevada state engineer, explained that making the proposed Ely-Wendover connection a part of the Nevada highway system permits allotment of state and federal funds to construction and an early beginning of the work. The connection will join the Lincoln and Victory highways over the same route between Wendover, at the Utah line, and Salt Lake City.

CONTINUED PROSPERITY

Herbert Hoover, in his report for the fiscal year 1927, declares that the rate of real wages in the United States during that period "remained higher than anywhere else in the world, or in any other time in world history."

He declared that this high level of prosperity was the result of general and permanent progress, based on sound fundamentals, giving reason for the belief that satisfactory conditions will continue.

Industry has made great strides in efficiency, accompanied by the maintenance of high wage levels without rise in price levels. There has been steady development in transportation facilities, and we have maintained a commanding position in foreign trade, while the financial structure of the country is in sound condition.

Altogether, Secretary Hoover's report shows that the country is in a satisfactory condition. On the other hand, it points out sufficient "low spots" so that we should not become careless through over-confidence.

The fisherman who keeps right on fishing and who does not rock the boat, is the fellow who brings in the good catches. As a nation we should follow this plan.

Correspondence courses in the science of government are inexpensive, but it costs something to get elected to an office where the knowledge gained can be put into practice.

SAFETY IN DRIVING

Statistics show that over sixty per cent of the accidents due to motor traffic are caused by faulty brakes, and the great majority of these accidents could have been avoided if the brakes had been maintained in proper condition, was the statement of the California Public Safety Conference of the California Development Association.

How many of us who drive know, for instance, within what distance we should be able to stop our cars when travelling at speeds of, say from ten to thirty five miles an hour? The following table will serve as a guide to the motorist as just what the efficiency of his braking should be, from the standpoint of safety.

"When the rate of speed is ten miles an hour, 20.8 feet; at twenty miles, 37 feet; twenty-five miles an hour, 58 feet; thirty miles, 83.3 feet and at thirty-five miles an hour, 113 feet.

An excellent way to make a service test of one's brakes is to throw out the clutch and apply the brakes and note the distance travelled before the car comes to a complete stop, bearing in mind the speed at which the car was travelling.

Since experience and statistics go to prove conclusively that a vast majority of accidents are the direct result of inefficient brakes, it is up to each and every one of us to see that the brakes of our cars are at all times 100 per cent efficiency.

None of us would intentionally be the cause of death or injury to anyone, but until we each, as individuals, resolve to do our part, and then do it, all the legislation and all of the educational efforts that are being made toward making the highways safe for all will be in vain.

COST OF EDUCATION

Studies just completed by the educational commission of California Taxpayers' Association on the basis of data supplied by the United States Department of Commerce, reveal that the cost of education in American cities is mounting at a much more rapid rate than the cost of other functions of government. The figures are for the fiscal year 1926 and deal with 250 American cities of over 30,000 population.

Comparing 1926 costs with 1916 costs, the study shows that payments for operation and maintenance rose from $186,000,000 to $607,000,000, or from $5.77 per capita of population to $14.51, which is a gain of 151 per cent in the ten year period.

In 1916 the cost of school maintenance in these 250 cities comprised 30.8 per cent of the total city expenditures. In 1926 it had climbed to 37.0 per cent.

In 1916, in these city schools, $46,000,000 were spent for permanent improvements, which was 20.2 per cent of the total city expenditure for permanent improvements. Ten years later the expenditure was $202,000,000 for school improvements, which was 25.7 per cent of the total city improvement cost.

MODESTY AS A POSE

Modesty is a most commendable trait, but like many other worthy characteristics, it probably can be carried too far. This observation was suggested by looking over the Congressional Directory in which short life sketches of Senators and Representatives appear.

These sketches are generally written by the gentlemen concerned and are useful to editors and others who may have occasion to scan the records of these worthies. But some of them are disappointing in their lack of details, while others appear to be unnecessarily padded with irrelevant matter.

Several members of Congress confine their sketches to a mere statement of the number of sessions to which they have been elected, while one simply states his name and place of residence. Now, is it real modesty which permits these gentlemen to refrain from telling something of their past careers which might be interesting and useful information to those who look for it in the Directory?

We do not believe it is modesty. Our experience is that persons who enter politics and wage effective campaigns for election to Congress are not shrinking violets. When one of them confines his sketch to one sentence in the Congressional Directory, it is simply a pose. He is not really that modest.

DEATH TAKES 15 PER CENT OR MORE OF FORTUNES

"Whatever a man is worth when he dies, the best his estate will realize is about 85 per cent", according to Gil A. Cowan, director of information for the California Taxation Improvement Association who addressed a joint meeting of Rotary and Exchange Clubs at Paso Robles.

"In some cases, due to excessive state inheritance taxes and federal estate taxes the heirs' shares shrink 30 per cent and if they are encumbered the carrying charges become so great as to cause the confiscation, by creditors, of the entire estate," the speaker declared in pointing to the need for a radical revision in our present inheritance tax laws.

Mr. A. B. See, the elevator manufacturer, is a harsh critic of modern schools. He seems to think they should take their A. B. Sees more seriously.

AN ALL-STAR CABINET

An interesting, if not particularly edifying, indoor sport is that of picking all-star and all-American teams in football, baseball and other athletic activities. This practice has been varied slightly by a prominent magazine, which has attempted to select the most capable government administration, drawing from all who have held the positions considered.

In all such enterprises there will be differences of opinion, but here are the magazine's selections; with dates of taking office:

President, George Washington, 1789.

Vice-President, Theodore Roosevelt, 1901.

Secretary of State, John Hay, 1898.

Secretary of the Treasury, Alexander Hamilton, 1789.

Secretary of War, Elihu Root, 1899.

Secretary of the Navy, William C. Whitney, 1885.

Attorney General, Roger B. Taney, 1831.

Postmaster General, Amos Kendall, 1835.

Secretary of the Interior, Franklin K. Lane, 1913.

Secretary of Agriculture, James Wilson, 1897.

Secretary of Commerce, Herbert C. Hoover, 1921.

There have been only two to hold the office of Secretary of Labor, no choice was made.

Students of American history may amuse themselves by looking up the records of executives who have held the offices named and improving on the list given if they can.

A telephone line is about to be built between Egypt and Syria.

SIDELIGHTS

An automobile radiator may be made to function as a churn, according to Hake Baldwin, of Cedar Grove, N. J., but removing the finished product presents difficulties. Hake filled his steaming radiator with milk when no water was handy and later had to pay a mechanic to remove the resulting butter and buttermilk at a cost of $3.25.

Frequently when aliens become naturalized they modify their foreign names by abbreviating them or adopting shorter Americanized cognomens. In the case of a Greek who recently applied for citizenship paper in Newark, the court clerk suggested that a little shortening might be advisable. But the applicant spurned the suggestion, declaring that Uncle Sam must take him with his full name, which is Constantine Pappadimitrioulopoulos.

If a contemporary is to be believed, it is possible to form a wide spread organization in the United States upon the slightest pretext. It declares that there are now 18,000 members of the Society for the Prevention of Calling Pullman Porters "George."

Few men ever have a more unpleasant duty to perform than did Sheriff Payne of Natchitoches, La., who recently hanged a life-long friend, Hugh Phillips. Just before springing the trap, the sheriff patted his victim affectionately on the shoulder, explaining afterwards: "Years ago Hugh and I used to run horse races together and little dreamed that we should ever meet like this."

New Orleans police charged that one Walter C. Anderson, who claimed to be a Tennessee sheriff, acted unbecomingly upon a recent visit to the Crescent City. Among the temperamental peculiarities noted were disturbing the peace, using obscene language, reviling the police, resisting arrest, tearing an officer's uniform and refusing to pay a taxi bill of 75 cents.

A tragedy was averted by a radio receiving set in the home of a prominent woman at Lexington, N. C., recently. The set was turned on but tuned to the wave-length of a silent station when a negro entered the house and attacked the woman. While she was struggling with the brute the station came on the air and the booming voice of the announcer hundreds of miles away frightened the negro off.

An illustration of how interest accumulates is seen in a recent allowance of a claim for $3,000 against the United States for the seizure of a schooner owned by James Crooks, of Toronto, during the war of 1812. His heirs get the $3,000 with interest for 115 years, a total of $23,600.

The Atchison (Kans.) Globe claims that its town has a citizen who punctually observes all the niceties of business etiquette. Even when saying his prayers he begins with "This is Jones speaking."

Ed Howe, the Kansas sage, commenting on Jack Dempsey's remark that his wife "made" him, reminds the former champion that since he has been married Tunney has whipped him twice.

It is reported that the entire Remus jury has been offered an engagement in a burlesque show. If there is a jury scene in the play they could fill their parts to perfection.

If one is restless and his bed is near an open window, it is well to hug the pillow. By taking this precaution, Richard Griffith, of Baltimore, protected his head when he rolled from a third story window in his sleep, and escaped with minor bruises.

A jokesmith gets off this one: Callahan says to Farrell, "You're a fool." Farrell replies, "You're drunk." Callahan says, "Yes, but tomorrow I'll be sober and you'll still be a fool."

Johnny Scott, son of President Walter Dill Scott, of Northwestern University, will not follow in the footsteps of his distinguished father, whose life work has been feeding the mind. Johnny will feed stomachs instead, having opened a delicatessen store.

"Oh, I say! Stop and have sandwiches and coffee with me!" she suggested chummily—not at all as a subordinate addresses a superior officer. "I can't bear eating alone—it's almost gross, isn't it? Will you? I've heaps—well have a jolly lunch! I've a thermos bottle of hot coffee, good strong coffee that I made myself." She chattered as she began to set things out on the flat desk-top, feeling exhilarated at a bit of normal human association and talk after her weeks of strained, artificial relations. With this man, if they kept off of pedagogy, she could be herself—up to a certain point at least (though of course she would have to watch her accent). She almost snatched his hat and coat away from him as she directed him to draw up his chair before the array of dainty sandwiches, coffee and fruit which she had spread out.

"But," he said as he placed their chairs and they sat down, "why is my company all of a sudden so welcome? An hour ago it was, 'You here again!'"

"Well, since you know the very worst about me, I can enjoy a chat with you. I've been dying for a man to talk to! I've been almost driven to flirting with the wooden Indian in front of the village cigar store!"

"Flirting? I'm afraid I can't play up. Don't know how. Afraid I've always been rather a stick with girls," he said dolefully, his eyes on her glowing face and creamy neck encircled by a fluffy, fluted white ruffle. What a brute he had been to make her cry—anything so dainty and sweet!

"I wouldn't presume to flirt with the county superintendent," she reassured him, "who knows the very worst about me!"

"The very worst—you're sure?"

"What further do you suspect me of? Not knowing the Presidents in order? Well, I don't. Nor the Twelve Apostles either. And I can't name off-hand the Chinese dynasties for the past five thousand years. Have some coffee?"

She poured him a second cup and his heart thrilled to her as he saw how gay she now looked after her tears. He himself was lonely enough, in all conscience, and this bit of companionship with such an engagingly impudent child was, to say the least, very diverting.

"You made this coffee?" he asked. "Teach that to the girls of your school and I'll advise your trustees to raise your salary—and if they taste your coffee they'll do it!"

"You put good coffee before learning and call yourself an educator! Men do like their comforts, don't they? I wonder why I'm teaching school anyway, when American cooks are paid such huge wages. What do American cooks do with the millions they earn? Buy country estates and retire?"

"American cooks?" he repeated reflectively. "How about foreign cooks? English cooks, for instance?"

She felt a betraying warmth in her cheeks. He suspected her! No wonder, the way she so often spoke of American things, as though she were not an American!

"I should think," she answered calmly, "that with the terrible unemployment we read of over there, cooks ought to be cheap. I'm told, Mr. Creighton," she changed the subject, as she leaned back in her chair with a sandwich in her hand, "that you're a terrible idealist. How do you manage it?"

"I don't. Though the alternative is so self-destructive! Do you (am I to conclude), like most young people of this day, imagine yourself a cynic?"

"How can one escape it?" I have a cousin who was a radical Socialist until he married a rich wife. I have an uncle who was a liberal in all his ideas until a fellow-professor at his college was expelled for his liberalism—when my uncle changed his views. Believe in liberals with ideals? No, it's asking too much!" She shook her head over it hopelessly.

"Did you never know anyone," Creighton asked, "to sacrifice something for the sake of his ideals?"

"You?" she inquired, looking at him over an expanse of sandwich at her lips.

"Heavens, no! I was thinking of—Mr. E. D. Morell, for instance—"

"Editor of Foreign Affairs," she nodded—then instantly regretted her too-ready knowledge of this English editor. Wasn't the mention of him a bait? Would an American be apt to know of him? "Of course," she hastened to add, "liberals all over the world must take heart from Mr. Morell's steadfast courage and heroism!"

"Read about him in The Nation," he looked surprised. "I'm sure," he said, "you are the only teacher under my jurisdiction that has ever even heard of that paper!"

Conversation with him was, after all, too full of pitfalls, she decided. She was glad when the children's returning to the schoolroom obliged him to take his leave.

Her curiosity as to how much he suspected was fairly consuming her.

CHAPTER VI

Aunt Rosy was again at the Schwencktons', and it was manifest that her brother-in-law was not "overly pleased" at her unexpected visit.

Conversation at supper, in spite of her efforts to sustain it, seemed to languish. No one but Aunt Rosy seemed to be in the mood for this friendly chatting.

"Susie told me about your holdin' up young Creighton and takin' his watch off of him, Sam," she said, "and if I was you I wouldn't like it so well that that fast young fellow got a foothold in him, Nettie, so lovesick she don't know half the time what she's about—"

"I don't know what you mean by a 'foothold,' Aunt Rosy," replied Mr. Schwenckton irritably. "He ain't been round here since."

"How do you know he ain't? This after, when I got here, I seen Nettie makin' sich chocolate futch and—"

"Yes," broke in Susie in a tone of grievance, "and mind what she done

"Flirting! I'm afraid I can't play up. Don't know how. Afraid I've always been rather a stick with girls."

yet! She cooked my fire out, so's I had to build it fresh to cook my supper!"

"And when her futch was done a'ready, did she offer some to me and Susie? She did not! And what's more, I don't see none of it bein' passed 'round to yous neither! What did she done with that there futch? Why, I seen her packin' it all up nice in a white box and hidin' it good away! Who for? That's what you'd better find out, Sam Schwenckton! Who for?"

Nettie, her face crimson, muttered something about "a big nosey" and "buttin' into other folks' business"—but her father interfered.

"Be peaceful, both of you. I won't have no wranglin' at our meals. Till supper's through a'ready, Nettie can tell me who the futch is for."

Nettie, flashing a look of hate at Aunt Rosy, subsided into a sullen silence.

Aunt Rosy was certainly a very disturbing element in this household. It was because of her presence here this evening that Mr. Schwenckton found himself, greatly to his astonishment, not to say bewilderment and distress,

"up against" the younger generation in a way that was a shocking revelation to him of how times had changed. Incredible it seemed to his patriarchal ideas of family life that his own young daughter should dare to defy him—but here was the fact before his very eyes—Nettie stubbornly refusing to answer his questions as to what she had done with the fudge she had made. She admitted that it was already disposed of. But neither commands, threats nor coaxings would elicit anything further from her.

Meely was pledged for a rendezvous, about school-closing time, with St. Croix in the woods on the hilltop.

This would be her first meeting with

Embryo Lawyer Puts Up Successful Plea

Apparently lawyers are born and not made, if a delightful yarn published in the Manchester Guardian correctly illustrates the development of the legal mentality from a start in the cradle, writes the London correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor. There had been a certain liveliness in the nursery just before bedtime, with the result that some of the furniture was broken. There was a fog of highly conflicting evidence in the nursery, and father decided that, failing a full and accurate account of what had happened, an anticipated holiday at Scarborough should be canceled.

After some moments of deep thought his young son, who will probably some day be lord chancellor, summed up the position in a sentence: "I have said I didn't do it, but if I can't go to Scarborough unless I say I did do it, I think I had better say I did it; but, if I did do it, I don't know I did him since their wordless encounter in the Schwenckton kitchen the night of the "holdup" and Meely, as she hastened after school to the hill, was tingling with curiosity as to what he would have to say of that dangerous moment which they had managed to come through so untravailingly.

She was pretty sure that poor little Nettie's fudge had been made for St. Croix. "For all I know, he has been seeing her and has discovered that I am the teacher!" she speculated.

Not that she believed he had been seeking Nettie. He was, for the time, too engrossed in herself. But Nettie, in her adolescent infatuation, may have been thrusting herself upon him and St. Croix would not be overscrupulous in accepting gifts the gods offered.

"I'll find out about that fudge," Meely resolved, "and if he is taking advantage of that ignorant child, I'll protect her!"

She wondered, as she went on her way, whether St. Croix would notice the coat she wore. The season having advanced too far for her gaudy voile frock, without a wrap, she was in a bit of a predicament, for her jacket suit was far too stylish for the Meely of St. Croix' mental gallery and the only other wrap she had was this half worn-out coat she had used on the steamer en route for America, an English tweed that had once been such a first-class garment she feared St. Croix would instantly detect its quality and style—he was so observant and informed in such matters—well, rather!

If he did notice that her coat was a good English tweed and ask questions, how on earth should she explain? She would have to trust to the inspiration of the moment.

"It's almost unbelievable that I've come through so far without his discovering me! I'm—some—actress, I am! They'll certainly have to notice me when I get to Hollywood!"

He was there ahead of her at their meeting place and the nipping air of the hilltop had acted as an irritant to both his passion and his temper. It was getting much too cold for these out-of-doors meetings and he knew of no place under a roof where they could get together without risk of detection—especially as Meely's father had grown suspicious for some reason; he had brought old Schwenckton's funny letter with him to show her; as a warning that she must be more careful; he would demand an explanation from her as to what she had done to rouse her father's suspicion.

Was there no way that he could have the girl except by taking her away from her home altogether? But of course he wasn't going to get himself into that kind of a mess! Absurd to think of it!

St. Croix still felt confident that when he nodded his readiness, Meely would be only too glad and eager to come to him. Why he had put it off so long was a mystery to himself. Something about her all along had seemed to check his being precipitate—though probably she was just as impatient at his dallying as he himself was.

But the time was surely ripe now and he must delay no longer.

"I'm very displeased with you," he began as they sat huddled together to keep warm, on the big flat log. "What on earth made you do such a reckless thing, my dear, as to send that box of fudge to my home? My mother got hold of it! Don't ever do such a fool thing again, Meely! What on earth made you break out like that?"

"Ach, well—you see, you gimme them swell handkerchiefs and so I wanted to pay you back."

"Of course it was nice of you to make the candy for me—but to send it to my home! My mother asked all sorts of questions—she's awfully worried—"

"She must be awful stuck-up if you're so scared of her knowin' you travel with me! But I knowed folks a'ready that's got twice as much as she's got and they ain't so proud that they're ashamed to know me!"

"My mother isn't 'proud,' Meely—she's the gentlest, sweetest, dearest—"

He spoke with such feeling that Meely, who so seldom saw him show feeling for anyone but himself, was impressed.

Dustin, the Resourceful

Harrison Gibbs tells of a night when the stage manager neglected to place a mattress outside the castle walls as a landing place for Dustin Farnum when he made a spectacular leap in some melodrama. Farnum landed with a thud audible all over the theater. To stave off the laugh he thought fast, with the result that almost immediately he peeked over the parapet and remarked, "The lake is frozen!"

Nation's Life Dependent on Proper Observance and Execution of Law

By JUDGE JAMES H. WILKERSON, U. S. District Court.

MORE important than any problem of finance or industry, or foreign relations, or agriculture is the grave question whether we shall enforce our laws. Upon that premise hinges the question of whether the nation shall endure. Laws forced by reformers and propagandists upon the country without any regard to the ability of the government to enforce them are one major cause of the breaking down of all laws. Big business has trampled upon laws which hampered or impeded the race for money. The attitude toward law of leaders of industry and finance during almost a century of development is only too well known. They sowed the winds and we're reaping the whirlwinds.

I would point out also as a contributing cause to our condition the inadequacy of the courts. There is too much delay. There are too many technicalities.

Those who advocate the doctrine of nullifying laws merely because they think they are unjust, are enemies of true republican government. That doctrine has no place in this country.

There was a time when respect for all laws was fundamental and existed. Is that true today? We know it is not. People have come generally to believe that the law has been broken down in this country.

What can we do about it? We can be more careful in passage of laws. We can repeal those which clutter up the statute books, hiding in their maze the important laws. We can improve the condition of our courts, simplify procedure, remove delay.

Life, property and prosperity are really dependent on the proper observance and execution of law, and it is time that Americans awake to the danger which is at their door.

Scientific Control of Birth Rate the Solution of the Population Problem

By REV. DR. HARRY EMERSON FOSDICK, New York.

You cannot trust God to bring everything off all right if you let the earth's population double every sixty years. If we do so we will reap starvation, unemployment and physical and moral decay.

Dean Inge of St. Paul's cathedral, London, has taken his share of obloquy because he has said in his straightforward fashion that "there is no hope for the basic social problem of population except in the scientific control of birth." All honor to him. He is not a sentimentalist. He is facing the facts.

We should take the shackles off the physicians, and let them tell the nation that there is no hope for the solution of the population problem except in the scientific control of the birth rate.

Here in the United States we are sufficiently anxious over this situation that we have checked immigration. I am a restrictionist because I am not a sentimentalist. A sentimentalist might say, "Let everybody freely in," but one who faces the facts must see that from the standpoint of this country we cannot handle the problem either physically or morally if, with the pressure of population, we let the teeming overflow of the world's peoples flow freely in, and, if we should, we would not solve anybody else's problem.

Childless Homes Largely to Blame for Divorces and Wrecked Lives

By REV. C. F. REISNER, New York (Methodist).

Childless homes cause more divorces and wrecked lives than does any other single thing. We are busier teaching people how to avoid parenthood than we are showing them what they will lose if they shut children out of their homes. Growing little ones teach, inspire, and develop character, waken ideals and insure happiness as can no other substitute. Pleasures lost by the demands of children are mere soap bubbles compared with the glory, satisfaction and vital benefits derived from building men and women out of our own sons and daughters.

Some parents actually excuse their childless homes by insisting that without the responsibility of a family they can do religious, charitable or reform work, which would otherwise be impossible. Some of them had better give their days to raising and training one Lincoln, one James J. Davis or one Michael Pupin than to spend fifty years in other fields for which they are unfitted, because they do not get the training nor the God-like development which children would bring them.

Gain in the Disestablishment of Church and State in England

By REV. DR. DUNCAN H. BROWNE, (Episcopal) Chicago.

Disestablishment of the Church of England from the state would be a decided gain rather than loss to the church. The prayer book which was rejected by the house of commons was a result of much study by the best minds of the Church of England. It seemed the best solution of the situation. Its rejection leads one to believe that disestablishment of the church from the state would be a good thing, a gain rather than a loss to the church. A great many members of the church would welcome such a dissolution.

The debate which accompanied the action on the prayer book is one of the healthiest signs of life possible. It shows an awakening interest in the church. This renewed interest will be a decided advantage to the church. The church has been dead in many respects, and the debate and interest created in the present situation will serve to liven the church all along the line.

Ineffective Training of School and College Teachers Hampers Education

By NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER, President Columbia University.

Educational delinquencies of appalling significance are resulting in America from a lack of education on the part of school and college teachers. The elaborate training which teachers often receive is a sorry substitute for education. They are trained as specialists, but whatever purpose this trait may serve in other fields, it is futile as an instrument of education.

Intensive training from childhood in gainful pursuits is not a sign of educational progress, it is a return to the Dark ages. What is lacking today is that background of good manners, cultivated speech and high standards of appreciation in art and letters which always has bound together those of genuine educational insight and competence.

The BABY

Why do so many, many babies of today escape all the little fretful spells and infantile ailments that used to worry mothers through the day, and keep them up half the night?

If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered pure, harmless Castoria. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. And its gentle influence seems felt all through the tiny system. Not even a distasteful dose of castor oil does so much good.

Fletcher's Castoria is purely vegetable, so you may give it freely, at first sign of colic; or constipation; or diarrhea. Or those many times when you just don't know what is the matter. For real sickness, call the doctor, always. At other times, a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria.

The doctor often tells you to do just that; and always says Fletcher's. Other preparations may be just as pure, just as free from dangerous drugs, but why experiment? Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold!

Indian 118 Years Is Pre-Chicagoan

Nah-Nee-Num-Skuk Born on Lake Shore When It Was Wilderness.

Mayetta, Kan.—Born in 1809 in an Indian village situated where Chicago now stands, an one hundred and eighteen-year-old Indian, who lives now at this place, has not been back to the scene of the Windy City since it was merely an oasis in the wilderness along the shore of Lake Michigan.

Nah-Nee-Num-Skuk was but a youth of twelve or so when his tribe, the Pottawatomies, set forth from the lake shore to found a new home for tribal life further on in the unexplored West. He is unable to comprehend descriptions of the great changes that have occurred in the locality of his birth since his leave-taking more than a century ago. He would like to go back once again to see the scene of his birth before the Great Father calls him to the Happy Hunting Ground. Nah-Nee-Num-Skuk, despite all the tales he has heard, believes he could still pick out the site of his birthplace.

In his vision he can see plainly the small tepee on the shores of the great lake, where he first came into consciousness. He can see the little clearing, the tall trees, the rippling stream that flowed into the lake and he believes that it still must exist as it was when occurred the onrush of the whites, which caused his tribe to move on westward.

Tribe Went West.

His tribe, the Pottawatomies, did not like too close an association with the newcomers in their land, so they folded their tents, left their ancestral shore acres and departed for the vast hunting grounds that remained further on toward the setting sun. Nah-Nee-Num-Skuk remembers the arrival of the first whites, with their long guns and queer ways. He remembers councils with the chiefs of the tribe had with them.

The Pottawatomies were friendly toward the invaders. They did not seek to slay "palefaces." Nah-Nee-Num-Skuk was not a fighter. He was known as a peaceful Indian. However, some members of his tribe with more ferocious tendencies went on a few scalp-hunting expeditions. The Pottawatomies had unavoidable wars with other tribes when they left their camp at Lake Michigan for hunting grounds not their own. But Nah-Nee-Num-Skuk took no larger part than was necessary.

He never has learned to speak English. At a recent visit to him it was necessary to converse with him through his wife, who is his sixth helpmate. Nah-Nee-Num-Skuk no longer lives in a tepee, but in a four-room frame house on the Indian reservation, 11 miles west of the town of Mayetta, where he has been allotted a tract of land. Relatives of his wife plow his land, plant the crops and harvest the grain.

But the ancient Indian tends the chickens and the cows. Every morning he spends about two hours chopping wood. He cuts it cleanly, places it in a neat pile, then rests till afternoon. The remainder of his work consists of odd chores. His present spouse is more than a generation younger than he. She is eighty.

Each of his first five wives died of old age. His many children—so many that he is not sure what the count is—died of old age, too. If now living, the youngest would be an old old man. The number of his grandchildren runs into scores. His appearance is testimony that he has seen a great number of summers and winters come and go. He has an almost indescribable look of oldness, yet he gets around much better than some persons half a century younger. A few weeks ago he journeyed to the Indian powwow at Lawrence, where he witnessed his first football game. It was the contest between the Haskell Braves and Loyola of New Orleans.

He was pleased when told that Haskell was the victor. But he failed to understand any of the rudiments of the game.

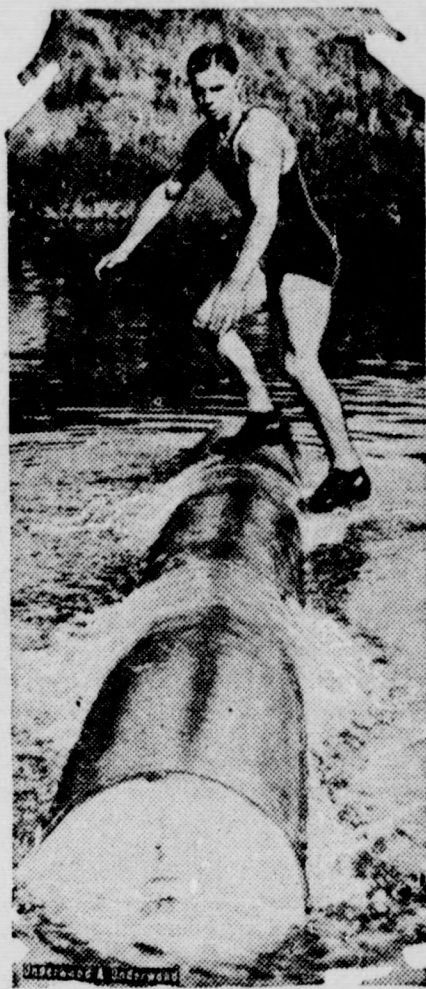

"It sure was nice," was how his sixth wife translated his comment. She added that the Indians never had a game quite so rough, even in the days of their reputed savagery.

When asked if he would attempt to play the game if he were a young man today, Nah-Nee-Num-Skuk answered that he probably would.

He makes frequent trips to the office of the Indian agent at Mayetta. He always is quiet and reserved when there, generally seeking some favor or his monthly allotment. He wears his snow-white hair long, parted in the middle, and he clings to many of the customs of his ancestors. Moccasins protect his feet. But, except on occasions of ceremony, he wears an ordinary hickory shirt and trousers of the white man's type.

He has lived on the Pottawatomie reservation near Mayetta for more than 20 years. Before that he was on a reservation in northern Kansas. More than half his life has been spent on reservations. But the first 50 years of his existence were spent in the wild, free life of the aboriginals. He has participated in many buffalo hunts, many forays to gain provisions, and has withstood winter rigors protected only by the skins of animals.

Wilbur Marx, a sixteen-year-old high school boy of Eau Claire, Wis., who has been proclaimed the world's log-rolling champion as the result of recent competition.

Skeptical of the Changes.

Nah-Nee-Num-Skuk has been told that tall buildings rise immense heights on the site of his birthplace; that over its magnificent avenues rush thousands of cars; that millions of people inhabit the shores he knew, and that busy wharves line the lake, and that the little stream he knew is obliterated. Yet it seems to him that the clearing of his youth must remain as when he trudged out early last century behind the ponies and luggage of the tribe. Were he to go and see the city, he would say, "No, there has been a mistake. This is not where I was born!" Only the lake would look the same, but the big ships would distort the view of his memory.

One thing saddens the heart of Nah-Nee-Num-Skuk. There is no longer anyone who is familiar with the days of his youth, or who can talk over with him the things that he remembers. The last tribal member who recalled the days when the Pottawatomies were encamped on the shores of Lake Michigan died more than 40 years ago. Since that time the old Indian has had to brood alone with his thoughts of the past. There have been some who remembered experiences of 70 or 80 years ago, and who could talk with him concerning later events, but there has been no one who had any remembrance of the trials and experiences of far earlier days.

His parents have been dead for nearly a century. But he recalls clearly the mother on whose back he used to be carried while she went about her work in the Indian village.

When not occupied with his daily tasks, Nah-Nee-Num-Skuk sits in the sun on the porch of his home, thinking over matters that passed by long before the memories of most old men of today even had a beginning.

The Indian agent verified the fact that the age of "the old Indian" really is one hundred and eighteen, and that he was born in 1809, the year in which Abraham Lincoln first saw the light of day.

Stork Takes Vacation in Pennsylvania Towns

Monaca, Pa.—One of the most remarkable records in the history of the state was made in Potter and Raccoon townships, this county, in 1927 when the stork failed to make a single visit. There were eighteen deaths in Potter township and four in Raccoon, according to Elmer Fisher, county registrar of vital statistics. There are several hundred families in Potter and Raccoon townships and most of them come from the old strains who in years past were wont to raise big families and take the greatest pride in their descendants.

STORY OF SORCERY UPSETS PLACID LIFE OF NAPLES

Gossips Declare Mysterious Cure Was Used by Sexton to End
Girl's Sufferings.

Rome.—The placid life of Naples has been upset for some time by a particularly gossipy case of sorcery which has just taken place at Monticelli, not far from Naples.

In the little town of Monticelli, a woman named Annunziata Scognamiglio, had for a long time tried all means known to medical science to cure her niece, a little girl named Gazzolino, who was suffering from arthritis, and whose sufferings were intense.

One day, gossiping with neighbors, Signora Scognamiglio learned that Salvatore Tasti, sexton of the cemetery, had an infallible nostrum against all ills.

"He's a bit of a sorcerer," the neighbors said, "but his secrets are exceptionally efficacious."

Fear of sorcery was not sufficient to prevent Signora Scognamiglio from trying to end the sufferings of her niece. Accompanied by her sister, she took the child to see the graveyard keeper. Tasti understood what was wanted immediately.

"Follow me," he said simply. All three went into the cemetery with their guide, who took them to a bier where reposed the body of a child named Andreotti, who had just recently died.

The sexton raised the cover of the bier and then taking the child Gazzolino in his arms, he touched her body to that of the deceased infant, pronouncing all the while in a solemn voice various formulas of incantation.

When the rite was finished, Signora Scognamiglio gave $50 to the sorcerer. Then, by some strange hazard of circumstances, it happened that the little girl shortly afterward recovered completely.

Finding $10,000 Pearls Is Costly to Bootblack

Chicago.—Cares were few for Peter Kyriakos, youthful bootblack, until he found a $10,000 pearl necklace. Now he has become involved in multiple legal tangles that threaten to cost him the price of the necklace.

When Kyriakos found the pearls he thought they were cheap. He took them to a jeweler, who astounded him by announcing their value and by calling the police, who took the gems and held the bootblack.

After several legal skirmishes, the court awarded the necklace to Kyriakos as no one had claimed it, but the police still refuse to surrender it without more litigation.

His first attorney has already filed a suit for $3,500 attorney's fees.

On the Funny Side

COULDN'T OUTDO HIM

The scene is a quarter of a century ago in a backwoods section. A brooding motorist was trying to make conversation with the farmer across the fence who was having trouble with his mowing machine.

"What kind of a machine is that?" asked the farmer.

"That is an automobile," replied the tourist. "And what do you call that machine of yours?"

"Oh," replied the farmer disgustedly, "that is an automowhay, but I won't."

The Temptation

"Whatever induced you to marry me, anyway, if I'm so distasteful to you?" he asked fiercely.

"I think it was the ads," she replied.

"The what?"

"The advertisements. The household bargains, you know. I thought it would be so lovely to go to the department stores and buy ice picks for only 9 cents and 25-cent egg beaters marked down to 14 cents, and so on. Of course, I had no use for that sort of stuff as long as I remained single."

TOOK HIM OFF HIS FEET

Tourist—There's one wonderful thing about the Italian country that just took me off my feet.

Friend—And what was that?

Tourist—Its earthquakes.

Overheard

"Does he belong to our set?" she asked. And it gave the lad a jar. But he raised his head as he mildly said:

"I do when we have a war."

Not Seaworthy

Gentleman (buying an umbrella)—I suppose it opens up all right, has a good cover, and all that?

Clerk—Open it, sir? Good gracious, no! People who can afford an umbrella like this usually take a taxi at the first suggestion of rain!

So Inconsiderate

Voice Over Wire—Madame, your husband has been run over by a truck!

"Good heavens! On the afternoon of my bridge party!"

A TOE DANCER

"What kind of a dancer is he?"

"A toe dancer—judging from my mashed toes."

An Ancient Problem

When Noah sailed the ocean blue, He had his troubles same as you; For days and days he drove the ark. Before he found a place to park.

Practical Proposal

George (nervously)—I'd like, the best in the world, Kitty, to marry you; but I don't know how to propose.

Kitty (promptly and practically)—That's all right, George. You've finished with me; now go to father.

Two Credits

Ruth—I'll give Reginald credit for getting me a nice engagement ring.

Ruby—I expect that's what the jeweler gave him, too.

Elderized

Mother—Helen is possessed. She says she'll never be satisfied until she is handling the stick of an airplane.

Father—Try and persuade her that she can get good practice by handling the stick of a broom.

The Apex of Depreciation

"Think of it! A hundred per cent depreciation in value in one short year."

"What are you talking about?"

"Auto license plates."

Hen's Silly Idea Not Unlike French Bluff

M. Bokanowski, the French minister of commerce, was asked in New York if it was true that France would revalorize the franc.

"Bluff," he said. "Politicians' bluff. Revalorization would mean a public debt of 300,000,000,000 gold francs—say $80,000,000,000—and an annual burden of 50,000,000,000 gold francs, or $10,000,000,000, on our taxpayers."

"This bluffing, bragging revalorization talk reminds me of the hen."

"A hen set out to see the world and met a crow in a remote forest."

"But, madame," said the crow, "are you not afraid—you whom nature has denied the gift of flight—are you not afraid of losing your way in all this dense tangle?"

"Afraid? Oh, no," said the hen. "Every little while I lay an egg, you see, to guide myself back by."

Look to Travelers' Comfort

The Panama Pacific line has just placed in commission the new steamship California, the largest electrically propelled commercial ship afloat. She carries 750 passengers and 8,000 tons of freight. She sails from New York with her kitchens provided with Monarch coffee, supplied fresh from the Monarch roasters in New York, and will be reloaded for the return trip from the Monarch roasters in Los Angeles. That is an evidence that passengers on this famous ship get only the best.

A man smokes to compose his mind. For the same reason a woman crochets.

TWO HOMES MADE HAPPY

By Women Who Used Lydia
E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I think it is the most wonderful medicine I ever tried," is the statement made by Mrs. Goldie Shoup of St. Joseph, Minn.

She declares that after taking the Compound she is in better health than before.

Mrs. J. Storms of 29 Lane Street, Paterson, N. J., writes: "I can not speak too highly of your medicine and I recommend it to all my friends."

These statements were taken from two enthusiastic letters which tell of the help that has been received from using the Vegetable Compound. Both Mrs. Shoup and Mrs. Storms were in a run-down condition which caused them much unhappiness. When women are suffering from lack of strength and from weakness, their own life and that of their family is affected. When they feel well and strong and are able to do their household easily, happy homes are the result.

Thousands of testimonial letters have been received from women in different walks of life, stating that the Compound has helped them.

Red tape has its usefulness: To blockade pestiferous measures; as filibustering has.

Term Almost Obsolete

The term "oblique sailing" refers to the movement of a vessel when she sails upon a course making an oblique angle with the meridian. The use of the term is rare.
